

TAYLOR

PAMELA GRETCHEN CARTER died Sept. 2, 2004 at home in Dallas, after a long battle with cancer. Life was Pam's art form, something she enjoyed to the fullest and taught to those around her. Adventurous, vivacious and always ready for new experiences, Pam was an inveterate world traveler, a voracious student, a loving mother, a stylish partier, a generous and all-knowing teacher, and a steadfast friend. Her zest for life was infectious, and you always felt better for being with her. Born Nov. 4, 1943 in Dallas, Texas, Pam was a true cosmopolite who embraced the world. She attended Hockaday, Thomas Jefferson, Finch in Manhattan, Greenbriar in Lewisburg, West Virginia, and the University of Hawaii. She lived in Paris, France, attending the Sorbonne; studied at the Università per Stranieri in Perugia, Italy; and at home, there was Southern Methodist University, and later, yoga under Kumar. After moving to Boston, she married and had two children, then, later moved back to Dallas where her children finished school. While mothering, she worked as a travel agent, a realtor, and a floral arranger. And in the last few years she assisted teaching a cooking class in the south of France. Pam had a rare sensibility of knowing. Highly intuitive, Pam simply could absorb wisdom from everything and everyone around her. You knew when Pam entered a room. She was always elegant, her stunning red hair and wonderful smile accompanied by a great sense of style that was entirely her own. Her trademarks were beautiful colors, scarves, shawls, and always, fabulous and exotic jewelry. There were trips to Africa, Asia, Mexico, South America, England, and Ireland, countless returns to France and Italy. And most recently, a long trip to Spain with her daughter, Lily, and son, Guy, where Pam celebrated her 60th birthday at a grand party with sixty friends. Pam is survived by her children Lily Taylor, Guy Taylor, her former husband Eugene Taylor, Ph.D., her sisters Phyllis Anne Cowden, Jane Holder, countless nieces and nephews, and godchildren. Preceded by her sister Sara Mayes, and their parents R. Guy Carter and Phyllis Gretchen Carter. A memorial service will be 2:00 P.M. Monday, September 6, 2004 at Sparkman Hillcrest, Northwest Hwy. Chapel. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be sent to the Visiting Nurse Association, 1440 West Mockingbird Lane, Suite 500, Dallas, Texas 75247. To leave a personal tribute, please visit www.mem.com yoga under Kumar. After moving to Boston, she married and had two children, then, later moved back to Dallas where her children finished school. While mothering, she worked as a travel agent, a realtor, and a floral arranger. And in the last few years she assisted teaching a cooking class in the south of France. Pam had a rare sensibility of knowing. Highly intuitive, Pam simply could absorb wisdom from everything and everyone around her. You knew when Pam entered a room. She was always elegant, her stunning red hair and wonderful smile accompanied by a great sense of style that was entirely her own. Her trademarks were beautiful colors, scarves, shawls, and always, fabulous and exotic jewelry. There were trips to Africa, Asia, Mexico, South America, England and Ireland, countless returns to France and Italy. And most recently, a long trip to Spain with her daughter, Lily, and son, Guy, where Pam celebrated her 60th birthday at a grand party with sixty friends. Pam is survived by her children Lily Taylor, Guy Taylor, her former husband Eugene Taylor, Ph.D., her sisters Phyllis Anne Cowden, Jane Holder, countless nieces and nephews, and godchildren. Preceded by her sister Sara Mayes, and their parents R. Guy Carter and Phyllis Gretchen Carter. A memorial service will be 2:00 P.M. Monday, September 6, 2004 at Sparkman Hillcrest, Northwest Hwy. Chapel. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be sent to the Visiting Nurse Association, 1440 West Mockingbird Lane, Suite 500, Dallas, Texas 75247. To leave a personal tribute, please visit www.mem.com

 SPARKMAN HILLCREST
 1425 West Northwest Hwy., Dallas
 (214) 363-5401